Coolidge At Work

THE administration of President Coolidge now is, formally under way. Certain it is that his initial views, as disclosed at the first cabinet meeting since his induction into office, impress the nation most favorably. With admirable directness he turns to the consideration of the important pressing problems of domestic concern. There is no slightest indication that he regards our relations with Europe, or any phase of international policy, or any foreign problem or situation, as being superior in importance to the numerous questions directly affecting America and Americans.

There will be no extra session of congress, unless the information provided for the president's consideration by the secretary of agriculture suggests an emergency that would justify such action.

The president stands firmly by the declaration of the secretary of state with reference to reparations, but reiterates America's willingness to assist in the stabilization of Europe whenever such assistance may be desired in circumstances which clearly could not involve this country in Europe's unfortunate troubles.

The president stands for the collection of the debts due this country from its creditors. This is assuring to the business sense of the nation and to all those who loyally came to its assistance in the days of the war by purchasing its bonds.

Firmly the president announces his uncompromising allegiance to the budget policy so splendidly inaugurated during the administration of his predecessor, and which now amply is justifying the vision and wisdom of Mr. Harding and his co-workers, who forced its adoption over the opposition of a traditional and strongly entrenched wasteful inefficiency.

The president strikes a popular chord, also, when he announces his desire and intention to stave off a coal strike. But here—unless he may be able to devise and employ a truly Rooseveltian stroke—he is likely to accomplish little. He has sent authority to do anything in the premises, and the coal commission is purely an advisory body. But the support of the nation will be with him to any possible extent.

The Coolidge administration gets under way with much to commend it, much that inspires confidence, much that encourages the hope that the nation and its business will not suffer under its guardianship and direction.

DOES YOUR CLIMATE SUIT YOU?

Most of us take what comes in the matter of climate. Perhaps we stop to wonder what the Eskimo gets out of life up there among the ice, snow and terrible cold.

Perhaps people about the equator wonder how those of us in a temperate climate ever put up with our long winters.

As I said in a former article you will usually do well in your own particular climate if you are in good ordinary health.

Perhaps a word for our less fortunate friends might be in order.

Now, you seek a different climate for one of two reasons. It is because it is a "bracing" climate or a "soothing" climate.

So as in other things let your common sense be your guide.

For instance you have always had good health, have been very robust, and some acute illness comes upon you. You make the ordinary recovery, but it is thought wise by your physician that you get away to a "different" climate for awhile.

In your case then, you should go to a bracing climate, because your good health will come back to you in a shorter time under the influence of a climate that stimulates your resistive and recuperative powers.

But if you are of the above type, or have had a long lingering illness, perhaps of nervous origin, with excessive worry or grief, then the soothing climate is indicated in your case, at least at first any way.

Generally speaking dry climates are bracing, and moist or climates in humidity are soothing.

Usually a dry climate is subject to greater variety of changes, which in themselves are stimulating to the naturally healthy individual.

Moist climates have a very even temperature, and few changes, which are of course soothing to the less healthy person.

You can readily see then that in the high or mountainous climate living and exercising out doors, you would develop an appetite for anything and everything, and so build up your system.

In the soothing climate your nerves may be the important thing, and food would be a secondary matter at first.

DEPOSITORS PAID BY DAYTON BANK

Assets Of Bank Taken Over
By The Merchants National Bank.

Dayton, Aug. 18.—While federal authorities continued their investigation today of the tangled affairs of the American National bank, wrecked, it is charged, by the alleged forgeries of Fred W. Hecht, second vice president and cashier, totalling $315,000, the Merchants National bank has ready $1,400,000 with which to pay off its depositors.

All assets of the American National were taken over by the Merchants National and when that bank opening today a short line of those having accounts in the closed bank had terminated it was not anticipated, however, that withdrawal would be heavy.

Hecht was held in jail in default of bond of $50,000. Friends were expected to make an effort today to raise this amount. He is technically charged with embezzlement of $10,000, charged in a signed confession in the hands of federal authorities, was reported to have declared that he had been blackmailed of a large amount of the missing funds.

PARROT ALMOST TOO CLEVER

Possibility That Indiana Bird May Lose a Little, if Not All, of Its Popularity.

Mr. and Mrs. Watt Irvin, of Kokomo, have a parrot which is interesting. Reuben easily fits into the Irvin family circle in the evening, injecting remarks occasionally and at times seeming to ponder. He has made life a burden to some of the neighborhood boys whose mothers call them from play to obnoxious tasks. So cleverly does he imitate the voices of the mother that the little chaps are deceived.

The Irvins noticed Reuben hanging by his feet from the top of the cage and going through other exercises soon after they bought him.

"Look, Reuben's doing stunts!" Mrs. Irvin exclaimed.

"Stunts!" yelled the bird. Ever after that when he began the performance he always prefaced it with the word.

The Irvins had been out one Sunday afternoon and had come back to the house with visitors, to show the parrot. When they got ready to leave to escort the visitors out of town Reuben, noticing the preparation, exclaimed, "What, going away again?"—Indianapolis News.

OHIO GAME CHIEF DIES LATE FRIDAY

Columbus, Aug. 18.—John A. Bliss, 66, acting head of the state fish and game department and former examiner of the state bureau of accounting, died suddenly at his home here Friday afternoon. Mr. Bliss had been also acting as a special investigator for Gov. Donahey. He was taken ill Tuesday night. Death was caused by angina pectoris.

Mr. Bliss' first public service was as deputy clerk of courts at Canton, in which capacity he served for 12 years. Coming to Columbus he had been almost continuously for the past 22 years in some kind of state service. He was a Democrat and has been one of Gov. Donahey's closest advisers.

Conditions In Russia Better, Relief Worker Writes

"General conditions in Russia are improving wonderfully, in fact, more rapidly than one would expect," is the opinion of Howard C. Yoder of Wooster, who is at present engaged in relief work in that country. This improvement, he states in a letter to Allen King of Salem, a college friend, has progressed much further in the north than in the south.

"In the city of Moscow business is more active than it has been at any time for the past several years. As evidence of this, its streets, which are in good repair, are busy with automobile trucks and big wagons hanging various wares, while street cars are painted and running in good order.

"In the south, too, business seems to be on the way to recovery and the people, generally, are better dressed than previously. More goods are finding their way into the established stores, while new stores are still being opened, although not as rapidly as in the spring.

Industry Improving
"As a whole, industry and transportation is still badly crippled, but shows signs of improvement. The mills which handle grain and convert it into flour and other food products will have work this fall, giving employment to many who are now the objects of charity.

"It is expected that the harvest will have an indirect effect on other factories, too, and enable many of them to start operations. Notwithstanding the fact that the rolling stock is scarce and much of it in bad condition, the railroads are more serviceable than many people in America would suspect.

"Crop conditions throughout Russia vary greatly in the various sections. The surplus grain crop will hardly be as large as was expected earlier in the season. As a result grain prices are now rising."

"On this point Mr. Yoder says that during the month of June would have yielded 75 per cent on the investment. As previously stated, the size of the crops varies greatly in the different sections of Russia. The Crimea has an average crop. In the Ukraine the crop is better than the average, notably south of Alexandrosk, where there is the biggest crop in 26 years.

The northwest has a better crop than usual, while the lower Volga basin is slightly below normal, and the upper Volga much below normal.

Crop Failure in Siberia
"The condition, however, which has been causing prices of grains to rise recently, and which will prevent Russia from having an abundance of food

SALEM SCOUT ACTIVITIES

With the dam nearly completed as a result of strenuous work on the part of scouts and officials prospects for a very satisfactory swimming pool look promising by camp time.

The six-inch pipe, intended to carry the flow of the stream during erection of the dam, proved inadequate recently, when a rather liberal rain caused the water to rise almost to the spillway.

Forty-eight scouts and a majority of the officials have signified their intention to spend all or most of the ten days in camp, beginning Aug. 29 and ending Sept. 7.

This, the first council camp for Salem, is to be the biggest and best ever with unusual opportunities for advancement, and comprising several big features in the way of instruction and entertainment not possible in an individual troop camp.

Each scout intending to attend camp will deposit with the commissioner, not later than Saturday, Aug. 25, $6 and a written permit from parents or guardian.

It is hoped the cost can be kept under $5. The difference between the deposit made and the actual cost will be refunded soon after camp.

The scoutmasters have the list of personal equipment needed by the boys.

FLAMES DESTROY BARN AT LEETONIA

Barn And Contents Wiped Out By Fire On The Steinmetz Farm.

Leetonia, Aug. 18. Thursday afternoon about 4 o'clock the fire department was called to the home of J. H. Steinmetz owned by Frank Glutner, in the western suburb of Leetonia, where the large barn was in flames. The place being outside of the borough no water was available. There was no livestock in the building, but all else inside was burned. The loss is heavy with only a partial insurance.

The fire was discovered above the granary, and how it originated is not known, unless it may have been from combustion of overheated grain or hay.

"Make Salem A Home-Ownning Town"

We offer the White property, located on East Fourth street opposite the Fourth street school building, having a frontage of 84 feet and a depth of 150 feet with an alley on the west side and an alley on the south side. This is improved with a substantial seven-room house, modern except heater; nicely papered and finished inside, newly painted outside. This is not only a good home but has wonderful speculative value due to its location, being only three short blocks from the center of town and near school. This is one of the few desirable building spots for an apartment house that there is in Salem. If interested in the combination of a good home as well as a good investment, come in and talk this over with us.

PACIFIC COAST GROWING FORESTS

HUMBOLDT COUNTY (CAL.) LUMBERMEN SEEM TO HAVE THE CORRECT PLAN.

TRIED FIRST FOR PULPWOOD

Reforestation for This Purpose Proving Successful, It is Now Being Extended to the Timber Supply—Another Case Down South.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington—David T. Mason, a forest engineer of Portland, Ore., recently submitted to the officials of the National Lumber Manufacturing association a copy of the articles of association of the newly formed Humboldt Redwood Reforestation Company of Humboldt County, California. A United States senate committee which is studying reforestation problems will bring California before long, and there it is believed the members will find that the lumbermen of the Humboldt district really are reforesting their lands as they are cut over. The government's forest service seems to believe that, if this plan is followed elsewhere, the problem of how to use our timber and still have it will be solved.

The Humboldt company found out years ago that it could regrow timber for pulpwood purposes. Timber is cut young for this use and as a result, in the California case, there were not many years of waiting for a pulpwood supply from the replanted areas.

Now Planting for Timber Supply.

Reforestation for pulpwood to be used in papermaking having been proved to be a success, the company gave thought to the greater subject of reforestation for a timber supply. All plans have been made and the work will go forward. It takes a long time to grow a tree, but it is one of the noblest and most useful things in nature, and man generally considers time and trouble well spent if they bring noble and useful results.

The Pacific coast is not to have a monopoly of reforestation work by practical lumbermen. Col. A. C. Good-year, president of the Great Southern Lumber company, which operates the largest sawmill in the South, has said that his company definitely has determined upon a policy of reforestation which will keep the mill cutting perpetually.

It is understood that this company some years ago started on reforestation attempts as a means of cutting up pulpwood supplies for its paper mills, but only now has decided to do likewise for the lumber mill. This latter decision was reached after Colonel Goodyear spent a month in Sweden studying methods used in that country to regrow timber. It is said he found one concern in Sweden which had been in the lumber business since the year 1347, almost six centuries.

Good Example in Sweden.

Reforestation has kept this concern going. It owns a sawmill which cuts 100,000,000 feet of lumber a year, and a paper mill which produces 45,000 tons of paper and 40,000 tons of pulp annually. Each year the company grows enough timber to supply these mills.

As has been said in hundreds of dispatches and letters from Washington, forestry has been one great subject of controversy in the capital of the United States for many years. One of the chief reasons for President Harding's visit to Alaska was to reach some conclusion as to what should be done with the timber of that country. In a general way, the Interior department advocated a liberal policy of lumbering, while the Agricultural department, in which the bureau of forestry is located, has been opposed to lumbering on any great scale in Alaska unless absolute safeguards were provided.

There has been row after row in congress and out of congress on the forestry subject. A committee of the United States senate is traveling to make a special study of the matter. It will couple up what it finds with what President Harding finds, and it may be that in a year or two the administration will have a definite forestry program. But it always must be remembered that before this the government has thought it had a definite program, only to find out that it would not stand the test.

Ups and Downs of a Joke.

One can just about tell how long a man has been married by the way he gets that old stuff about hooking them up the back. If he has taken unto himself a wife during the last ten years, or during the reign of the peasant blouse and the one-piece dress, he'll only register a blank look when the once popular gag is pulled, but if he joined the ranks of the Tri Hook'em Upsilon fifteen or more years ago when tight things, choker collars, stays and erinoline were in vogue, then watch him chuckle reminiscently but without a pang of regret, however, for the bad old days.—El Dorado Times.

Off the Beaten Track.
